used to get up in the morning, he told me, "and I'd stand in front of the mirror. I'd say to myself: 'Look, boy, if you want to eat, you've got to sell stereoscopes. Maybe you think you can't do it. But you are going to—or you won't eat.'"

Howard Thurston, the great magician, used to do something like this, too. He often found he had to stir himself into action.

"Some performers," he said once, "look out through the peephole in the curtain at the audience before the show and say, 'We've got a lot of suckers aboard tonight.' How foolish! I would remind myself how wonderful it was that all those people had come to see me.

"I'd say, 'I'm going to give them the best show ever tonight. I can do it, and I will.'"

You can't make yourself over in a day or a week. I'm aware of it from my own experience. Give yourself time. You'll be helped, as I've been helped, if you keep in mind the principles I've just been mentioning.

In a nutshell:

Keep growing. Improve yourself. Develop enthusiasm. Strengthen your will to get ahead. Be straightforward and remember that what you are speaks louder than words. As a practical daily stimulant to put yourself over, give yourself a pep talk.

Sooner or later, you'll put yourself over. THE END

Rarely should a guest take a gift to a hostess unless expecting to stay for at least a week end.
